Commercial Model

The Marketcetera Automated Trading Platform is a full-featured, open source algorithmic software platform made available for use under the terms of the GPL license 2.0.

To complement our open source project, Marketcetera has created professional service packages that will help you get to market faster and meet the most demanding production service level agreements.

Marketcetera offers a variety of service and support models, depending on the unique requirements of your organization. Please contact a sales representative at info@marketcetera.com to discuss the specifics of your situation.
